Never Build a Schedule Backward (and Other Project Truths I've Learned)

Never Build a Schedule Backward is based on the thirty-five years of hands-on experience of project management consultant, educator, and author Bob Jewell. In this presentation, Bob highlights a few of the many truths he's learned about managing projects and will challenge the audience regarding a few widely-accepted project management concepts. He'll also involve the audience in identifying what he believes is the most valuable tool for managing a project. Bob's extensive real-world experience combined with his humor and communication skills creates a dynamic and entertaining presentation. Participants will take away practical and proven ideas to improve their projects.
